Jefferson Symphony Orchestra cancels Winter Concert due to COVID-19

Jefferson County, CO: Jefferson Symphony Orchestra (JSO) announces that they must cancel next month's Winter Concert at the Green Center in Golden, Colorado.

Due to the current COVID environment and challenges we are all facing, we have made the difficult decision to cancel the February 13 performance at the Colorado School of Mines. Guest conductor Alan Yost was scheduled to conduct Jefferson Symphony in a program featuring Daniel Gostein, marimba, who won the 2020 Young Artists Competition.

Now in its 69th season, one of the oldest in Colorado, JSO will resume performances on March 27 from the Green Center. By taking this decision, our directors and performing members hope to safely welcome audiences back soon and enjoy live music once again. Preserving the health of our musicians, administration, and our audiences is our primary responsibility.
